

Bob Lutz

Bob has over a decade of animal welfare experience with shelters and nonprofit organizations across the country. Originally getting his start with St. Hubert's Animal Welfare Center in 2011, Bob moved on to the ASPCA as an anti-cruelty behavior consultant for a federal, multi-state dog fighting case where he helped implement a comprehensive behavior program. Bob then advanced to become the Shelter Manager for Animal Alliance of New Jersey. Bob has been with Tony La Russa's Animal Rescue Foundation since 2016, and his current role as Animal Programs Director involves leading the organization's adoption, animal care, and behavior & training departments.

As a lifelong animal advocate, Bob is committed to strengthening community partnerships and serves as an alum for Leadership Contra Costa. When he's not working, Bob likes to spend his time hiking and exploring the Bay Area with his wife and son.
