

JENN SMITH

Stanislaus Animal Services Agency

Operations Supervisor/Volunteer and Foster Coordinator

Jennifer Smith is an Operations Supervisor and Volunteer Coordinator at Stanislaus Animal Services Agency. Jennifer believes that it takes a team of multi-talented people to collaborate and share similar passions to be successful in the animal welfare field. As the Operations Supervisor and Volunteer Coordinator Ms. Smith supervises clerical staff, shelter staff, and field officers in the absence of their direct supervisors. Additionally, Ms. Smith oversees the Volunteer and Foster programs. Ms. Smith has attended mentorships through Best Friends Animal Society, attended the Animal Control Academy, Supervisor Training Academy, and is a Certified Veterinary Technician through Modesto Junior College to further her knowledge in the field. Jennifer has expanded both the volunteer and foster programs, respectively at Stanislaus Animal Services Agency. Ms. Smith has spear headed and launched a successful inmate work furlough program, known as FETCH, which is mutually beneficial for the shelter animals and the program participants. Ms. Smith is passionate about the people behind good animal welfare, from volunteers and fosters to staff and rescues, and she strives to recognize their potential and nurture their individual talents for animal life saving measures. Ms. Smith is a mother to two young children. She comes from the small town of Ceres, CA inside of Stanislaus County. She enjoys camping, and graphic design. Jennifer is currently finishing her BS degree in Business Administration Project Management. She is set to graduate in the Spring 2022.
