Wallis Annenberg Pet Space

Animal Care Manager

I have spent the past 15 years being involved in the animal welfare industry in a variety of roles. Currently, I am the Animal Care Manager at Wallis Annenberg PetSpace in Los Angeles, California where I oversee the animal care, medical, behavior, foster, and adoption programs. I started out as a volunteer at the local SPCA in Fredericksburg Virginia before going on to obtain a Bachelor's in Zoology from the University of New Hampshire and a Master's in Zoo Conservation Biology from the University of Plymouth in England. I had spent 5 years, prior to moving to Los Angeles, working at various different rescues and shelters across the country, specifically helping to end euthanasia at rural shelters in the Midwest and keep pets with their families.
